A PURE HEART: THE TRANSFORMATION OF DESIRE

It is easy to lose heart.

Our own sufferings, frustrations and fears, and the state of our world and its plight, can wear us down. When this is our lived experience, it is understandable that we may feel abandoned by God.

But our God is there, seeking us out.

This Season of the Heart is an awakening to the love of a God who seeks us out as beloved, and who approaches us all with a capacity to transform and heal.

What have you been working hard to earn?

What might change if you received it as a gift?

Where is even the smallest movement of love, desire or hope stirring in you?

The Carmelite tradition invites us to awaken, reminding us:

- ◆ God seeks us out as beloved.
- ◆ What we strive to earn is always freely given.
- ◆ Even the smallest movement of love can place us in God's presence.
- ◆ A pure heart is a heart open to communion.
